I selected DropzoneJS because it is a library I have heard of several people using and enjoying. I came from Human Resources, where everything is a form! I feel that it is nice to see how it works behind the scenes and how you can make it easier for the user to use.

DropzoneJS is a library that lets you upload files via drag'n'drop or the document finder. In its simplest state it automatically uploads the file to the server and gives the user confirmation that it did or did not post successfully. You can customize the library to limit the acceptable file parameters and style it however you feel.
